1. Torpedo station no. 1 is located about 400 meters north of the harbor in the Oksywie river basin. At the end of the war, part of the equipment was carried off, while at the same time a large part of the permanent installations was demolished.
2. About 1949 reconstruction of the station was begun; this was finally completed in 1953. It has, among others, three torpedo tubes. Installations of various kinds are set up on a jetty, measuring about 200 meters in length, which is equipped with tracks for the transport cars. The tracks ramify a shore, where, in the vicinity of the jetty's abutment, considerable stores of torpedoes and grenades are buried in concrete shelters. Practice with charged torpedoes has also taken place.
3. Torpedo station no. 2 is situated about 700 meters north of station no. 1. The installation was never completed by the Germans, but that which they succeeded in building was left intact. This station, which is now entirely finished, is largely similar to station no. 1. It can not be determined whether it has two or three tubes. The length of the jetty is about 150 meters. Between the torpedo stations there is a newly built road intended for transport of ammunition. The road is especially well concealed and is not discernible from the sea; it is probably not discernible from the air either.
4. About 100 meters south of torpedo station no. 1, there are contrivances for loading of torpedoes onto naval vessels. Nearby there is a workshop for inspection of training torpedoes.
